Cradle-to-College-to-Career Approach

The disparities between children from poor families and those from non-poor families are significant and pervasive, but targeted, continuous intervention at multiple life stages has the potential to eliminate these disparities across the cradle-to-career continuum.¹

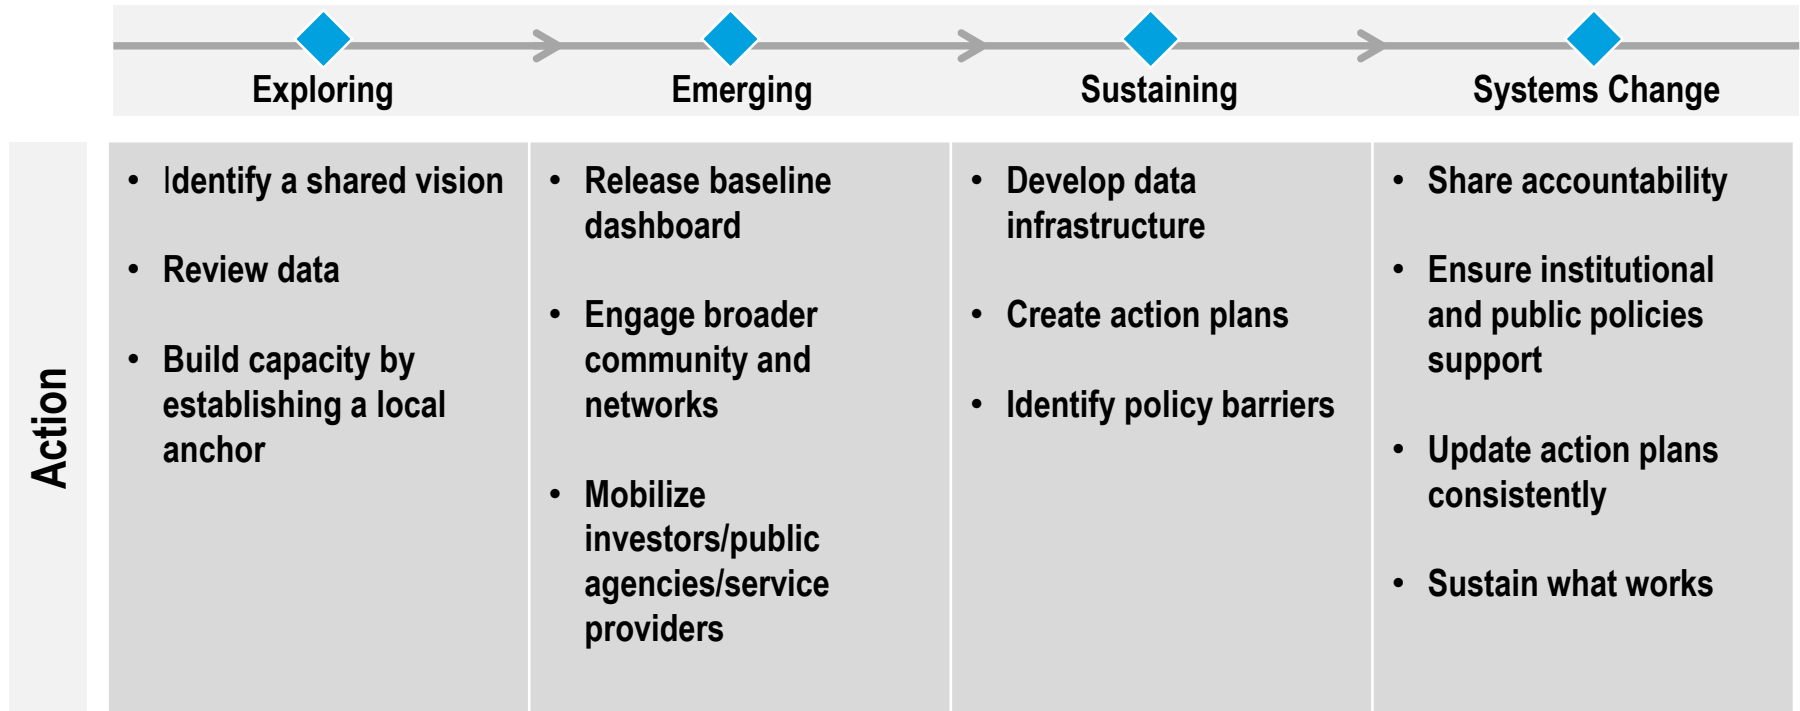

Key Principles for Developing Sustainable Approach²

1. Engage the Community
2. Focus on Eliminating Locally Defined Disparities
3. Develop a Culture of Continuous Improvement
4. Leverage Existing Assets

In order to effectively and sustainably implement a cradle-to-college-and-career approach it is important to understand the underlying key principles

Driving Systemic Change in Your Community³

Following your Local Action Summit, you are asked to review existing programs and policies related to MBK and establish a baseline understanding of where gaps and opportunities lie within your community. As you conduct this review, you can reference the below proven model to create a sustainable strategy for your community:

The review should include recommendations for action on your selected areas of focus, standards for tracking and sharing data across public agencies / community partners, and structural recommendations for institutionalizing the effort until goals are reached

Elements of Success

By incorporating some or all key elements of success into your design, you will drive systemic and sustainable change in your community, no matter the issue at hand.⁴ These elements of success include:

- 1. Clear Goals
 - 2. Emphasis on Place
 - 3. Authentic Youth and Community Engagement
 - 4. Committed Leadership
 - 5. Support from Political Leaders
 - 6. Engaging Local Intermediary Organizations
 - 7. Leveraging Expertise of Organizations / Networks
 - 8. Policy and Systems Reform
 - 9. Strategic Use of Data

MBK Milestone 6:

Reducing Violence and

Providing a Second Chance

Milestone Overview: Reducing Violence and Providing a Second Chance⁵

CHALLENGES

- Youth may fall victim to violence or experience an interaction with the juvenile and criminal justice systems that permanently alters their trajectory for the worse
- While crime has generally decreased across the US in recent years, violence continues to plague many communities, and disproportionately affects communities of color
- Persons of color disproportionately have contact with law enforcement, are overrepresented in all correctional settings, and face disparate treatment in the juvenile justice system
- All of our criminal justice data needs to be improved to help us better understand the underlying issues in this realm

OPPORTUNITIES

- Reduce violence in high-risk communities by integrating public health approaches
- Encourage law enforcement and neighborhoods to work hand-in-hand
- Reform the juvenile and criminal justice systems to keep youth and young adults on track
- Eliminate unnecessary barriers to reentry and encourage fair chance hiring options

All children should be safe from violent crime; and individuals who are confined should receive the education, training, and treatment needed to have a real second chance

Build Understanding: Engaging your Community Ecosystem and Key Principles

Engaging Your Community Ecosystem

A key next step toward driving change involves mapping your local community ecosystem, with a focus on engaging and connecting key stakeholders*, including:

*These key stakeholder groups are meant to serve as an illustrative sampling, to be validated and adapted as relevant to your specific community

Key Principles

The trust between law enforcement and the communities they serve can be strengthened through deliberate efforts to facilitate racial reconciliation, enhance procedural justice, and reduce implicit bias

The disproportionate contact of overrepresented youth with law enforcement and the juvenile and criminal justice systems can be reduced through improved policies and practices

Successful reentry programs are critical to addressing the many needs of and challenges faced by individuals released from prison, jail, or juvenile facilities

Identify Leading Practices: Evidence-Based Practices and Programmatic Success

Evidence-Based Practices

1

Group-Based Violence Intervention

2

Justice Reinvestment

3

Juvenile Detention Alternative Initiative (JDAI)

4

Models for Change Initiative

Programmatic Success in the Field

Neighborhood Opportunity Network (NeON)

– New York, NY

Network of community organizations, government agencies, local businesses, and community residents that aims to improve clients' outcomes and make communities safer and stronger. Initial outcomes reveal that six-month re-arrest rates are lower among NeON clients (25%) compared to individuals assigned to a traditional probation caseload (33%)

County Prisoner Reentry Program

– San Diego, CA

A comprehensive multiagency collaboration designed to assist, educate, treat addictions, and transition parolees into the community. The ultimate goal is to produce law-abiding and self-sufficient members of the community and enhance public safety.

Becoming a Man (B.A.M) – Chicago, IL

A dropout and violence prevention program for at-risk male students in grades 7-12. Results include reduced violent crime arrests by 44%; reduced weapons crime and vandalism by 36%, reduced the likelihood of attending school in a juvenile justice setting by 53%; and increased future graduation rates by 10-23%

By tailoring these evidence-based practices to your local context, you can help move the needle in your community
